Market Opportunity and Revenue Potential

The UK market presents a significant opportunity for HITIQ:

Total Addressable Market (TAM): The UK represents approximately 2.02 million participants across Rugby Union and Rugby League - the main collision sports market - with Hockey and Combat Sports also representing substantial participation levels, as previously outlined in our 12 June 2025 ASX announcement regarding additional details of the Shock Doctor manufacturing agreement.

Revenue Structure: HITIQ's business model includes both upfront product sales and ongoing annual subscription revenue. The annual subscription ensures players receive a new instrumented mouthguard each year and benefit from continuous innovation as HITIQ develops enhanced versions of the technology, keeping users on the latest and greatest system.

Production Capacity: With production underway for 2025 and manufacturing capacity for up to 100,000 units in 2026, HITIQ is positioned to meet significant market demand as adoption grows across UK community sports.

NHS 111 Integration: A Game-Changer for UK Athletes

The PROTEQT app has been specifically adapted for the UK market, incorporating integration with NHS 111 telehealth services.

What is NHS 111? NHS 111 is the UK's free, non-emergency medical helpline providing 24/7 health advice and triage services. By integrating PROTEQT with NHS 111, UK athletes gain immediate access to qualified medical professionals who can assess concussion symptoms and provide appropriate guidance - all at no additional cost to the user.

Why This Matters for HITIQ: This integration creates a unique value proposition in the UK market, as PROTEQT becomes the only concussion management system offering direct connection to the national healthcare system. This differentiation strengthens HITIQ's competitive position and may assist to drive higher adoption rates among UK athletes and their families who value such integrated healthcare solutions.

HITIQ has engaged Chris Lord, European Brand Manager for Shock Doctor, to act as UK Brand Liaison following formal authorisation from United Sports Brands (USB) Europe. The liaison appointment facilitates joint marketing initiatives, PR coordination, and brand alignment between HITIQ and Shock Doctor across the UK market, ensuring all activities remain aligned with the co-branded product strategy.
